Lead Response and Nurturing

1. Immediate Zillow Lead Response

Prompt: "Act as a top-performing real estate agent. Write a concise, personalized first response to a new Zillow lead who has viewed a 3-bedroom home in [City]. The tone should be warm but professional. Ask one specific question about their timeline to start a conversation. Keep it under 100 words."

Template: Hi [Name], I saw you're interested in the 3-bedroom home on [Street Name]. I know listing views can be overwhelming, so I'm happy to provide any details you might be missing. To help me help you best, are you looking to make a move within the next 30 days, or are you still in the browsing phase? Let me know, and I'll send over a few comparable listings that match your criteria.
Best, [Your Name]

2. Cold Lead Re-Engagement (30 Days)

Prompt: "Create a re-engagement email for a lead who went quiet 30 days ago. The subject line should be intriguing but not clickbait. The body should offer value, such as a recent market update or a new listing that fits their previous criteria, without being pushy."

Template: Subject: New option for your [City] search? Hi [Name], I've been keeping an eye on the market for you. A new property just hit the market at [Address] that fits your criteria for [Key Feature, e.g., 2 beds/1 bath]. I thought of you immediately. Would you like the details, or shall I hold off until you're ready to chat? No pressure either way. [Your Name]

3. The "Still Looking?" Check-In

Prompt: "Write a short, low-pressure text message for a buyer lead who hasn't responded in two weeks. Ask if their needs have changed or if they would like to pause the search."

Template: Hi [Name], just checking in! Have your housing plans changed in the last few weeks? If you're still looking, I have a few new options. If you need to pause, I totally understand. Just let me know how I can support you.

4. Post-Open House Follow-Up

Prompt: "Draft a follow-up email for a client who attended an open house but didn't leave a contact form. Reference the specific property features they might have liked and invite them to a private tour."

Template: Hi [Name], thanks for stopping by the open house at [Address] on [Day]. I hope you enjoyed the [Feature, e.g., updated kitchen]. If you'd like to see it again at a quieter time or have questions about the neighborhood, let me know. I can arrange a private tour for you this week.

5. Lead Nurturing: Educational Value

Prompt: "Write a short email educating a potential buyer about the cost of closing costs. Use simple terms, avoid jargon, and end with a call to action to schedule a 10-minute call to discuss their budget."

Template: Subject: What to expect at closing Hi [Name], many buyers are surprised by closing costs. While they vary by location, they typically range from 2-5% of the loan amount. This includes lender fees, title insurance, and prepaid taxes. I put together a simple checklist of these costs. Would you like me to send it over? Also, if you're ready to discuss your budget, I have 10 minutes free [Day/Time] to walk you through it.

6. The "Ghost" Recovery

Prompt: "Write a lighthearted but professional email to a lead who has ignored three previous emails. Acknowledge the silence without blame. Offer to remove them from the list if they are no longer interested."

Template: Subject: Should I stop emailing you? Hi [Name], I've sent a few updates recently, but I haven't heard back. I respect your inbox, so I don't want to clutter it. If you're no longer looking for a home, just reply "STOP" and I'll remove you from my list. If you're still looking but just busy, let me know when you'd like to reconnect.

7. Buyer Lead: Mortgage Pre-Approval Tip

Prompt: "Write a tip sheet email for a new buyer lead explaining why pre-approval is better than pre-qualification. Keep it under 150 words."

Template: Hi [Name], quick tip as you start your search: aim for a mortgage pre-approval, not just pre-qualification. Pre-approval verifies your financials with a lender, giving you more buying power and signaling to sellers you are a serious buyer. It's a crucial step in competitive markets. Do you have a lender in mind? I have a list of trusted local partners if you need one.

8. Lead Qualification: Budget Check

Prompt: "Write a polite script for a phone call to qualify a lead's budget. Ask for a range rather than a specific number to make them comfortable."

Template: "I want to make sure I'm showing you homes that actually fit your financial goals. To help me narrow down the search, do you have a comfortable price range in mind? It's okay to give me a broad range, like $400k to $500k, so I can focus your time on the best options."

9. Re-engaging Old Leads (1 Year+)

Prompt: "Write a 'long time no see' email to a lead from over a year ago. Reference the season and ask if their situation has changed."

Template: Subject: Checking in with [City] market changes Hi [Name], it's been a while! I'm reaching out because the [City] market has shifted significantly in the last year. If you're still considering a move, or if your plans have changed, I'd love to hear from you. No pressure, just keeping you updated.

10. The "Just Listed" Teaser

Prompt: "Write a teaser email for a hot new listing. Do not include the full address. Create urgency and offer a private showing."

Template: Subject: New on the market - Private viewing available? Hi [Name], a property matching your criteria just hit the market in [Neighborhood]. It features [Key Feature]. Given how quickly homes are moving in this area, I'm offering private viewings only for my top clients. Would you like to see it before the public open house?

11. Lead Nurturing: Neighborhood Guide

Prompt: "Write a short email introducing a neighborhood guide to a lead looking in that area. Focus on lifestyle amenities, not just stats."

Template: Hi [Name], since you're interested in [Neighborhood], I put together a quick guide on what life is like there. From the best coffee spots to local parks, it's a vibrant area. [Link to Guide]. Let me know if you'd like to add this area to your search criteria!

12. The "No Response" Text

Prompt: "Write a short text message to a lead who viewed a property online but didn't call. Ask a yes/no question."

Template: Hi [Name], I saw you looked at the home on [Street]. Did you have any questions about it? I'm happy to send over the floor plan or schedule a tour.

13. Buyer Lead: Market Timing

Prompt: "Write an email explaining why waiting for rates to drop might not be the best strategy. Use a balanced, non-alarmist tone."

Template: Hi [Name], I know rate fluctuations are on your mind. While rates are volatile, waiting for a 'perfect' moment can mean missing out on the right home. Inventory is low, and good properties go quickly. Is it worth waiting for a 0.5% decrease, or would you prefer to secure a home now with fixed-rate options?

14. Re-engaging Investor Leads

Prompt: "Write a follow-up to an investor lead. Focus on ROI, cap rate, and vacancy rates rather than emotional appeal."

Template: Hi [Name], following up on our last chat. I have a new investment property in [Area] with a projected cap rate of [X]%. The vacancy rate in this zip code is currently [Y]%. Would you like the financial breakdown?

15. The "Busy Professional" Lead

Prompt: "Write a short, efficient email for a lead who is a busy professional. Get straight to the point. Offer a 15-minute video call instead of an in-person tour."

Template: Hi [Name], I know your schedule is tight. To save you time, I can do a 15-minute video walkthrough of the home at [Address] this week. I can answer questions in real-time. Does

Tuesday at 5 PM work for you?

16. Lead Nurturing: First-Time Buyer FAQ
