

90-Day Growth Planner: Daily Prompts + Weekly Action Templates

RenWork Digital Products

90-Day Growth Planner: Daily Prompts + Weekly Action Templates

This planner is not a passive journal. It is a structured operating system for personal evolution. Most growth plans fail because they lack feedback loops. This 90-day cycle is designed to move you from Clarity (knowing who you are and what you want), to Action (doing the work consistently), to Integration (making the change part of your identity).

Use this document as your primary interface with your growth. Do not skip the follow-up questions; they are where the real insight lies.

Phase 1: Clarity (Weeks 1-4)

The goal of this phase is to stop running on autopilot. You cannot aim for a target you cannot see. These four weeks are dedicated to excavating your core values, defining your vision, understanding your energy patterns, and identifying the subconscious blocks holding you back.

Week 1: The Values Audit

Daily Prompt: What was the one decision I made today that felt most "true" to my core self, and why?

Follow-Up: Did I have to sacrifice comfort or approval to make that decision? If so, which value was I protecting?

Weekly Template: The Values Audit Framework

Coaching Note: Values are not just words on a poster; they are the criteria by which you judge every choice. If your values and actions are misaligned, you feel friction. This template helps you identify that alignment.

1. The Top 5 Filter: List the 5 values you believe are most important to you (e.g., Freedom, Integrity, Growth, Love, Creativity).
2. The Stress Test: For each value, write down a recent situation where you had to choose between this value and another. Which one did you choose? Did you feel proud or regretful?
3. The Contradiction Check: Identify one value from your list that you frequently violate in your daily life. Why do you keep violating it? Is it actually a value, or just a wish?
4. The Priority Stack: Re-order your top 3 values based on the last three questions. This is your new hierarchy. You will use this hierarchy to say "no" to opportunities in Week 5.
5. The Declaration: Write a single sentence: "I am committed to prioritizing [Value 1], [Value 2], and [Value 3], even when [specific obstacle] arises."

Week 2: The Vision Map

Daily Prompt: If I could magically manifest one specific aspect of my ideal life today, what would it be, and how would I feel in that moment?

Follow-Up: What is the smallest step I could take right now to simulate that feeling?

Weekly Template: The Multi-Dimensional Vision Map

Coaching Note: A vague vision ("be happy") leads to vague action. This template forces specificity across the six key areas of life. Be brutally specific.

1. Career/Business: Describe your ideal workday in 2025. Who are you working with? What problem are you solving? What does your income look like?
2. Health & Vitality: How do you move? What does your plate look like? How do you sleep? Describe your energy levels from 8 AM to 8 PM.
3. Relationships: Who is in your inner circle? Who have you let go of? What is the quality of your conversations?
4. Financial Security: What are your net worth goals? What assets do you own? What is your monthly cash flow?
5. Personal Growth: What skills have you mastered? What books have you read? What mindset shifts have occurred?
6. Contribution/Play: How do you give back? What brings you pure joy with no productive output?

7. The Gap Analysis: Compare your current reality to this map. Identify the single largest gap in each category. This will inform your Week 5 goals.

Week 3: The Energy Audit

Daily Prompt: What drained me the most today, and what recharged me the most?

Follow-Up: Is there a pattern in the people, tasks, or environments that cause this drain?

Weekly Template: The Energy Matrix

Coaching Note: Willpower is a finite resource. Energy management is superior to time management.

This template helps you categorize your activities to ensure you are investing in high-yield energy sources.

- The Drainers List: List the top 5 activities/people/environments that leave you feeling depleted, anxious, or resentful.
- The Chargers List: List the top 5 activities/people/environments that leave you feeling energized, curious, or calm.
- The Ratio Check: Estimate the percentage of your week spent on Drainers vs. Chargers. (Most people are shocked to find they spend 80% of their time on Drainers.)
- The Boundary Blueprint: For the top 3 Drainers, define one specific boundary you will implement starting next week. (e.g., "No email after 6 PM," "Limit social media to 15 mins," "Decline meetings without an agenda.")
- The Energy Investment: Identify one new "Charger" activity you will add to your calendar this week, regardless of productivity.

Week 4: The Fear Inventory

Daily Prompt: What am I avoiding doing right now because I am afraid of the outcome or the judgment?

Follow-Up: What is the worst-case scenario, and have I actually prepared for it?

Weekly Template: The Fear Confrontation Protocol

Coaching Note: Fear is not a stop sign; it is a highlighter. It highlights what matters most to you. This template helps you de-risk your fears so they stop paralyzing you.

- The Identification: Name the specific fear holding you back from your Week 2 Vision. (e.g., "Fear of public speaking," "Fear of financial instability," "Fear of rejection.")
- The Catastrophe Scale: On a scale of 1-10, how bad would it be if this fear came true? If it's a 10, write down exactly what that looks like.
- The Probability Check: What is the realistic statistical probability of this happening?

(Most fears are projected as 90% likely when they are actually 10%.)

4. The Mitigation Plan: What are 3 concrete steps you can take to reduce the risk or impact of this fear? (e.g., "Practice the speech three times," "Build a 6-month emergency fund," "Ask for feedback early.")
5. The Reframe: Rewrite the fear as a challenge. Instead of "I am afraid of failing," write "I am curious what I will learn if I fail."

Phase 2: Action (Weeks 5-8)

Clarity without action is just daydreaming. In this phase, you translate your insights into structured behaviors. We focus on breaking big visions into manageable chunks, tracking consistency, and ensuring you are not just busy, but effective.

Week 5: Goal Breakdown

Daily Prompt: What is the single most important task (MIT) I must complete today to move my top goal forward?

Follow-Up: What is the first 5-minute step to start that MIT?

Weekly Template: The Goal Breakdown Engine

Coaching Note: Big goals are scary. Small steps are manageable. This template ensures your goals are SMART (Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Relevant, Time-bound) and broken down into actionable tasks.

1. The North Star Goal: State your primary goal for the next 90 days (derived from Week 2).
2. The 30-Day Milestone: What must be true 30 days from now to stay on track?
3. The 7-Day Objective: What specific outcome must be achieved this week?
4. The Task List: Break the 7-Day Objective into 3-5 concrete tasks. These must be actionable (e.g., "Write draft," not "Work on project").
5. The Resource Audit: What tools, skills, or people do you need to complete these tasks? Do you have them? If not, how will you acquire them this week?
6. The Commitment: Schedule these tasks in your calendar now. A task without a time slot is just a wish.

Week 6: Habit Tracker

Daily Prompt: Did I execute my non-negotiable habit today?

Follow-Up: If I missed it, what triggered the slip, and how will I adjust tomorrow?

Weekly Template: The Habit Stacking Framework

Coaching Note: Habits are built on cues, not willpower. This template helps you anchor new behaviors to existing routines to ensure consistency.

1. The Anchor Habit: Identify an existing habit you never miss (e.g., brushing teeth, drinking coffee).
2. The New Behavior: What new habit do you want to build? (e.g., journaling, exercising).
3. ******