

ChatGPT Prompts for Coaches + Consultants: 150 Client Scripts

RenWork Digital Products

1. Discovery Calls (20 Prompts)

1. Act as a senior sales strategist in the [NICHE] industry. Write a 5-minute discovery call script for [CLIENT NAME] that focuses on identifying their "pain point" rather than their goals. Include three specific qualifying questions.
2. Create a checklist of 10 disqualifying red flags for a [NICHE] business owner. I am speaking with [CLIENT NAME]. Use this list to help me decide if they are a good fit for my high-ticket offer.
3. Draft a powerful opening statement for a discovery call with [CLIENT NAME]. The goal is to establish authority in [NICHE] while making them feel seen and understood. Keep it under 50 words.
4. Write a follow-up email for [CLIENT NAME] after a discovery call where they expressed interest but hesitated on price. The tone should be empathetic yet firm, emphasizing the cost of inaction in [NICHE].
5. Generate 5 "bridge questions" to transition from a general conversation about [NICHE] challenges to a specific discussion about my solution for [CLIENT NAME].
6. Act as a difficult client in the [NICHE] space. Roleplay an objection where [CLIENT NAME] says, "I can do this myself." Provide three distinct, value-based responses to overcome this objection.
7. Create a discovery call agenda that takes exactly 30 minutes. Break it down into time blocks: Rapport (5 min), Pain Discovery (15 min), Solution Presentation (8 min), Next Steps (2 min).
8. Write a script for handling silence during a discovery call with [CLIENT NAME]. If they stop talking after I ask a tough question, what should I say to encourage deeper reflection?
9. Draft a "value recap" email to send to [CLIENT NAME] within 1 hour of our call. Summarize their specific pains in [NICHE] and how my methodology addresses them, without pitching the price.

10. Create 5 questions to help [CLIENT NAME] visualize their life 12 months from now if they do not hire a coach in [NICHE].
11. Write a polite but direct script to end a discovery call with [CLIENT NAME] who is not a good fit for my program. Focus on preserving the relationship for future referrals.
12. Develop a "budget qualification" question that feels less like a sales interrogation and more like a strategic conversation about resource allocation for [CLIENT NAME].
13. Draft a post-call summary for [CLIENT NAME] that includes three "homework" tasks to do before our next touchpoint, keeping them engaged with [NICHE] concepts.
14. Create a script for when [CLIENT NAME] asks, "How is this different from free advice on YouTube?" in the context of [NICHE].
15. Write a short, high-impact LinkedIn message to reconnect with [CLIENT NAME] after a 3-month gap, referencing a specific insight we discussed on our last call.
16. Generate 3 "pattern interrupt" questions to ask [CLIENT NAME] if the discovery call starts to feel like a generic interview.
17. Draft a "risk reversal" guarantee script to present to [CLIENT NAME] at the end of the discovery call to lower their perceived risk of buying.
18. Create a script for handling the objection "I need to talk to my partner" from [CLIENT NAME]. How do I empower them to make the decision while respecting their partnership?
19. Write a discovery call outline that assumes [CLIENT NAME] is already aware of the problem but unaware of the solution. Focus on education.
20. Draft a thank-you note for [CLIENT NAME] that includes a P.S. section with a relevant resource or article related to [NICHE] to add extra value.

2. Client Sessions (30 Prompts)

1. Write a session opener for [CLIENT NAME] that asks them to rate their energy level from 1-10 and explain the "why" behind the number.
2. Create a 3-question sequence to help [CLIENT NAME] identify the single most limiting belief they are holding in [NICHE] this week.

3. Draft a "progress check-in" script for week 4 of our [NICHE] program. Ask [CLIENT NAME] for one win and one struggle.
4. Write a breakthrough facilitation prompt for [CLIENT NAME]. Use the "Empty Chair" technique to help them converse with their inner critic regarding [NICHE] goals.
5. Create a session close summary template. It should include: Key Insights, Action Items, and a "Commitment Statement" for [CLIENT NAME].
6. Draft a question to ask [CLIENT NAME] if they seem distracted or disengaged during our virtual session: "What is on your mind right now that is competing for your attention?"
7. Write a script to help [CLIENT NAME] reframe a recent failure in [NICHE] as a data point for learning.
8. Create a "Week 1 Onboarding" session agenda. Focus on setting expectations, defining success metrics, and establishing communication protocols.
9. Draft a tough love script for [CLIENT NAME]. They haven't done their homework. How do I address this without blaming, but with accountability?
10. Write a prompt to help [CLIENT NAME] identify their "Why" deeper than "making money." Use the "5 Whys" technique.
11. Create a session opener that asks [CLIENT NAME] to share one thing they are proud of from the past week, unrelated to business.
12. Draft a "Clarity Matrix" exercise for [CLIENT NAME] to map out their current reality vs. their desired reality in [NICHE].
13. Write a script for when [CLIENT NAME] says, "I don't know what to do next." Provide three guiding questions to stimulate decision-making.
14. Create a "Milestone Celebration" script. [CLIENT NAME] just hit a major goal in [NICHE]. How do I validate this without letting them get complacent?
15. Draft a question to help [CLIENT NAME] identify who in their support network is holding them back.
16. Write a session close prompt: "If you could only do ONE thing this week to move the needle, what would it be?"

17. Create a "Energy Audit" check-in. Ask [CLIENT NAME] what activities drain them and what energizes them in their [NICHE] work.

18. Draft a script to help [CLIENT NAME] visualize their ideal client. Ask for sensory details: What do they look like? What do they say?

19. Write a "Stagnation Breaker" prompt. [CLIENT NAME] has been stuck in the same loop for three weeks. Ask them to identify the pattern.

20. Create a session opener that asks [CLIENT NAME] to describe their current emotional state using one color.

21. Draft a question to help [CLIENT NAME] identify their "next logical step" after completing a major project phase.

22. Write a script for handling [CLIENT NAME]'s self-sabotage behavior. How do I bring this to light gently?

23. Create a "Legacy Question" for the final session: "What impact do you want to have on [NICHE] in

5 years?"

24. Draft a prompt to help [CLIENT NAME] prioritize their to-do list. Ask them to categorize tasks into "Urgent," "Important," and "Distraction."

25. Write a "Gratitude Check-in" for the start of the session. Ask [CLIENT NAME] to name three things they are grateful for in their business journey.

26. Create a "Role-Play" scenario for [CLIENT NAME]. I will play their difficult client, and they need to practice handling objections.

27. Draft a question to help [CLIENT NAME] identify their "Non-Negotiables" in their business model.

28. Write a "Reflection Prompt" for the end of the session: "What was the most surprising thing you learned about yourself today?"

29. Create a "Accountability Contract" template to sign at the start of a new phase.

30. Draft a script to help [CLIENT NAME] let go of perfectionism. Ask them to define "good enough" for this specific task.

3. Client Communication (25 Prompts)

1. Write a short, warm check-in message for [CLIENT NAME]. Ask how their week is going and if they have hit any roadblocks in [NICHE].
2. Draft an "accountability nudge" email. [CLIENT NAME] is late on a deliverable. Keep it friendly but firm: "I noticed we haven't received X yet. How can I support you?"
3. Create a milestone celebration email for [CLIENT NAME]. They just closed their first major client. Celebrate the win and ask for a testimonial.
4. Write a "tough love" script for [CLIENT NAME]. They are consistently missing deadlines. Explain the impact on their results and propose a reset.
5. Draft a "Busy Season" check-in. [CLIENT NAME] is overwhelmed. Offer to pause non-essential tasks to help them breathe.
6. Create a "Feedback Request" email. Ask [CLIENT NAME] for specific feedback on my coaching style.